

The bachelor thesis deals with the activities of UNESCO and IFLA in the field of developing information literacy. Firstly, both organizations are briefly introduced by means of their core functions, aims, historical background, organizational structure, membership and core activities. The core of the thesis is focused on the activities of UNESCO and IFLA in the field of developing information literacy, which are described by the means of their important activities: conferences, programmes and projects and key documents. The subsequent parts are focused on the common activities of IFLA and UNESCO in the field of developing information literacy and the possibilities of involving of Czech libraries in the mentioned activities of IFLA and UNESCO.